Hannah Miller is an experienced litigator and legal advisor who represents clients in complex business disputes, including class actions, in state and federal courts and before arbitral tribunals nationwide.

Hannah has represented clients in a wide range of industries including finance, biopharma, retail, media, technology, and entertainment, and has deep experience handling claims involving allegations of fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, breach of contract, copyright and trademark violations, and violations of securities and consumer protection laws.

Hannah has repeatedly achieved favorable outcomes for her clients at both the trial and appellate levels, including a groundbreaking jury verdict in a first-of-its-kind crypto fraud class action. She is adept at developing creative legal strategies and drafting persuasive briefs and has argued before the New York Appellate Division and the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Second and Sixth Circuits.

Prior to joining DTO, Hannah clerked for the Honorable Vera M. Scanlon in the Eastern District of New York. She spent over a decade litigating high-stakes disputes at a large international law firm.

In addition to being a litigator, Hannah is a lifelong theatre kid with a passion for language and good stories. Outside of work, she can most often be found running in Prospect Park, enjoying new musicals, or exploring Brooklyn and beyond with her husband and two kids.
